

Stage	New York City Tenement with Laundry: Questioning Strategy
Pre- Production	Where are the buildings in this city? Point to them. Point to the laundry (clothes) shown in this photograph. Do you see any people in this photograph? Was this photo taken during the day or night?
Early Production	How many clotheslines are there? In which buildings do people live? Where is this scene taking place? In what year, approximately, was this photograph taken? During what time of year was this photo likely taken?
Speech Emergence	What do you see in the distance? Why are the clothes hanging on lines outside the buildings? Would you like to live in one of these buildings? How might this scene look differently today?
Intermediate Fluency	How is the laundry connected between buildings? Must the people in one building know the people in the buildings on the other side? Compare urban housing from 100 years ago to now. How are they similar or different? [Have students create a Venn Diagram of the similarities and difference.] Are there cities like this today?

Authors: Steve Thornton and Barbara Cruz

Source: <http://teachinghistory.org/teaching-materials/english-language-learners/24143>